MOSA FOR WORKERS :

This is a booklet for trade unionists about the effects of the Machinery and Occupational Safety Act on workers.

The booklet explains the rights and duties of :

- * safety representatives
- * safety committees
- * employees
- * management

and the other provisions of the law.

The booklet also looks at ways that trade unions can use the new law to their advantage. It suggests that unions negotiate for elected safety reps. The safety reps should play an active role in monitoring hazards and keeping records on health and safety.

The booklet costs R1.00 for workers and R3.00 for employers and management organisations
