

REMEMBER JUNE 16 1976

1976 was a year of tears, a year of blood and death – but it was also a turning point in our determined struggle.

It was a moment of truth when students stood up for their rights. They braved the heavy hand of apartheid to demand democracy in education.

Today we now see mass action not only by students, but also by youth, workers, residents and women. We see hundreds of people's organisations taking root. We see civic bodies, trade unions, residents organisations, and student and youth groups.

Many of these organisations have come together under the banner of the United Democratic Front – the UDF. They have united the struggles for democracy in the schools, the townships, at work and in the government.

United action is now the order of the day.

Despite all efforts by the racist government to fool us, our suffering has not changed since 1976. Our spirit of our struggle has also not changed over this time. What has changed is that today we are organised and stronger. Today, freedom is nearer.
